HUNDREDS DIE IN GREEK EARTHQUAKES

MURRAY

One of the nicest ladies in town is Mrs. Urban Starks. She has grape vines and apple trees in her back yard, and the kids are thick as flies when the fruit ripens.

You can look out over the back yards and see kids streaming in from all directions and leaving with "crad apples" and "sticks of grapes."

Mrs. Starks must have a world of patience, because the kids have nothing but kind words for her.

We just got some of her white grapes and they made the best jelly you ever saw.

Our sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Allen Rose on the anxiety brought about by their son Jerry's accident with the motor boat propeller.

The parents always have a tough time of it under such circumstances.

Have you taken a peep into Littleton's lately. They are really changing the looks of the store.

The kids on South 13th street got the thrill of a lifetime yesterday.

Firemen came out to burn off the big field where the new elementary school building will be located.

The small fry had to stay on the side of the street while the "bigger" boys help set the stage grass.

All of the kids had a great time setting the big field on fire while the fire truck stood by in readiness to put it out in case things got out of hand.

The kids appreciated the efforts of the fire department because now when they play ball, they can still find it when they knock a homer.

Mr. W. E. Crider of 203 East Maple street has a cat that is an individualist in more ways than one.

In the first place the cat was born without a tail, which set her apart from her feline companions.

In the second place, the cat, who was unimpaired, found her a private spot to deliver her young-uns.

She selected the top of a tree.

Mr. Crider knows the cat and her kittens are up in the tree, but so far he has not been close enough to see whether they were born with or without tails.

Communists Empowered to Hold "Captured Prisoners" They Say

By ROBERT VERMILLION

United Press Staff Correspondent

Tokyo, Aug. 13 (UP)—The Communists, in their first major threat to the new Korean peace, said they legally were empowered to hold Allied prisoners convicted of "crimes" until they finish their terms.

Peiping radio, voice of Red China, denied that the Communists had a lawful obligation either to liberate their political prisoners or turn them over to a neutral custodial commission.

The Red radio waited until the United Nations command had released the last of 5,495 Chinese prisoners desiring to return to Communism before making its defiant broadcast.

Quoting a dispatch from the Communist camp at Kaesong near Panmunjom, Peiping radio said the Geneva Convention on prisoners accorded the Reds the right to compel prisoners convicted of "crimes" to serve out their terms.

At the same time Peiping made a vicious aside at U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who had expressed "grave concern" over the Communists' refusal to release the accused Americans.

Peiping blasted Dulles' statement that, as a result of the Communist attitude, the United Nations would hold back prisoners convicted by the Allies until the Reds produced all of their captives.

The Red radio said the Dulles statement was nothing but a "blackmail" plan for holding Communist prisoners.

Dulles, in announcing that the United Nations Command would hold the prisoners, "let the cat out of the bag," the Red broadcast said.

While alleging that the Korean Chinese side does not intend to return all the POWs, Dulles nevertheless has to admit that it is too early yet to know for sure whether any POWs are actually being withheld," the broadcast said.

In speaking thus, Dulles unwittingly stamps himself quite a liar.

The latest development on prisoners held by both sides struck hard at the issue that held up the cease fire in Korea for 25 months.

Last October, Allied truce negotiators broke off their conference with the Communists on the issue of repatriating prisoners.

The Communists had demanded forcible repatriation of all captives held by the UNC, whether they wanted to return to Communism or not.

But the UNC stuck to its stand that it would not return any of the 14,000 Chinese or 34,000 North Koreans who said they preferred death to repatriation.

The Dulles statement followed reports of returning prisoners that the Communists had pulled many of their captives on trumped-up charges such as "endangering the peace."

Another snide Communist act which embittered Americans was the announcement that the Reds would release Major General William F. Dean, their highest-ranking prisoner, with the last group of repatriates.

The Communists brazenly admitted they were saving Dean until the last minute. This was a calculated concession that they were holding Dean as a hostage in the event an untoward incident might halt the prisoner exchange.

Torch Sets Off Million Dollar Fire

Detroit, Aug. 13 (UPI)—A spark from a welder's torch was blamed today for touching off a spectacular multi-million-dollar fire which killed two workmen and injured more than a score of others as it reduced a sprawling General Motors plant to rubble.

Company officials feared the final damage figure might reach $70,000,000 and said it was nothing short of a miracle that most of the 3,000 employees on duty at the suburban Livonia plant managed to flee the building before it became a flaming inferno.

Livonia Plant Safety Director James L. Hagen, whose preliminary estimate placed the damage at $40,000,000, said the only part of the two-block-long structure left was a section housing front offices. The rest was a mass of charred bricks and twisted steel.

The fire started during Wednesday's late afternoon shift while a welder, who was not identified, was working near a tank of highly inflammable fluid used to clean transmissions.

Blazing fluid showered from the tank and raced across the creosote-treated wooden floor of the transmission plant, which makes transmissions for Cadillac and Pontiac passenger cars. Flames soon spread to an oil-soaked conveyor belt which helped carry the fire into the GM Termetest division, a producer of range-finders for Army tanks.

G. R. Throop, Sr.'s Life Is Praised By A Former Countian

A REMARKABLE CAREER

By W. A. SWIFT

Monteagle, Tenn.

I refer to Prof. G. R. Throop, Sr., who years ago taught school in Murray.

His parents sold their farm in Indiana, and moved to Green Castle, Ind., and put their son in the Depue University. In all he mastered seven different languages.

He was one of the most remarkable characters I have ever met. I tried to get him to go to a city where I was pastor, to head education work. He refused, by saying that he could do more good in a small town where he could get young people from the country around about, who really wanted to make something out of themselves.

He went from town to town, staying a few years at each place. Some of the towns were Murray, Mayfield, Benton and so on.

His hobby seemed to be taking students who wanted an education, but financially had a poor way of getting it. He would take notes, take in horses and all kind of bric-a-brac to help pay students' expenses.

He offered to take me into his home and give me board and room and my tuition free, but I would not accept it. Instead I took the janitorship of the school.

Most of his Murray students have passed away I suppose. I can call only a few names, less than a half dozen, whom I know to be living among them.

Some of them are Rainey Wells of Murray, Ed Ray and Charlie Leig of Graves County.

I recall the son of a blind father, who entered school under Throop at Murray, who had only tennise clothing to wear. He became a county judge and editor of a secular paper.

Curry Harris, who passed away, a Butler representative said.

Butler Brothers Buy Murray McElroy Store

St. Louis, Aug. 13 (UPI)—Butler Brothers, St. Louis, operators of the Ben Franklin Stores chain, today were the new owners of 13 H. A. McElroy 5 and 10 cent stores in Kentucky and Tennessee. Purchase price of the 5 stores in the two states is reported to involve more than $1,000,000. Kentucky stores sold include those at Madisonville, Bowling Green, Murray, Glasgow, Princeton and Providence. Eight Tennessee stores including those at Union City and Springfield, also were included in the transaction, a Butler representative said.

Mass Meeting To Be Held Here Tonight

A mass meeting will be held tonight at 7:00 o'clock at the court house of three civic clubs of Murray.

The purpose of the mass meeting is to appoint a citizens panel that will attempt to find a solution to the current strike situation at the Murray Manufacturing Company. The strike will be two months old on August 19.

All members of the three clubs are urged to be present at the meeting tonight. It is the first public movement to find some solution to the impasse at the stove plant.

One panel has already met with union officials and has a scheduled meeting with the company. The Lions Club also appointed a committee to work along the same lines.

At the meeting tonight some discussion is expected on the panel which will be representative of the majority.

About 600 employees of the stove plant are affected by the current strike.

Interested persons are urged to attend this meeting tonight at 7 o'clock at the court house.

Entire Cities Crumble Under Quakes And Fall Into Sea

Athens, Greece, Aug. 13 (UP)—Landslides swept part of the Cephallonia capital of Argostolion into the Ionian Sea today and new earthquakes destroyed nearby Ithaca, kingdom of Odysseus in Homer's epic poem.

Great masses of soil and rock slid into the ruined city of 10,000 population as fleets of ships raced to evacuate and aid victims of the continuing templers.

Authorities fear that at least 500 persons on the destroyed islands of Cephallonia, Ithaca and Samos died in the mammoth upheaval. Many vanished into great fissures.

The American embassy in Athens said the entire United States Sixth Fleet would be available to the Greek government for rescue operations.

An accurate account of the dead was impossible because entire villages disappeared when the earth opened.

The Athens seismological observatory said 22 new earth shocks jolted the island during the night and early today.

George Kormilas, correspondent of the newspaper Kathimerini, said, "There is a landslide every minute."

Kormilas' brief statement confirmed radio reports from rescue vessels that "people live in a state of madness."

Y. Moulas, Zante's deputy minister, sent to Athens a four-word cable that told the story of death and destruction.

"Zante does not exist," the cablegram said.

Terror-stricken survivors who had seen their loved ones crushed to death by crumbling walls or swallowed by the earth crowded the beaches awaiting evacuation.

Warships sent to the stricken island gave first priority to the injured.

Pilots flying over the devastated area said the picture reminded them of photographs of Hiroshima after the atom had been dropped.

The first group of 300 evacuees arriving at the Greek port of Piraeus described the horror.

"I was in our bakery," said Christodoulos Spyros of Sami on the island of Cephallonia.

"Suddenly I heard a buzz coming through the earth, something like thunder," Spyros, hospitalized with a broken knee, said. "A shock followed, like an explosion under my feet."

"I saw my father two yards away killed by a falling wall. I could not help because he was buried under debris, I cried for help."

Small groups were formed with a board member as leader of each group. Problems were brought up in each group and discussed. Then with the leaders as a panel, the problems of the entire group were discussed.

Ellis Henson, state chairman of the Committee of State Education and Education for Home and Family Life, presided over the afternoon session. Mr. Henson spoke on "Building An Awareness of Parent Education." Mrs. Dallas Bright, executive secretary, gave the credentials report.

The main address was given by Wendell P. Butler, state superintendent of public instruction. Mr. Butler talked on "The Proposed Foundation Program for Education in Kentucky" now under consideration by the State Advisory Board on Educational Policy. He explained the necessity of the amendment of Section 186 in the November election. By doing this he said our legislature would be given authority to appropriate school funds. Children in all districts would then have equal educational opportunities.

Dr. Woods, Mrs. Sheehan and Mr. Harry Sparks endorsed the proposed amendment. The body voted to go on record as approving the amendment and pledged their support as local units to work for it. They also voted to endorse the proposed program as outlined by Mr. Butler.

The meeting adjourned at 3 p. m. after a closing challenge by the State President.

Five Small Children Die In Ice Box

Crawfordsville, Ark. Aug. 13 (UP)—Five small children who locked themselves in an air-tight icebox while playing a game suffocated Wednesday while their mother picked cotton in the nearby fields.

"I had cautioned them never to get inside or they might freeze to death," their grief-stricken mother, Mrs. Annie Bell Hallman, sobbed today.

"They never played around the box before."

The bodies of Edward, 9, Wesley, 7, Odie and Tommy, four-year-old twins, and Barbara Ann, 2, were found in the 100-pound icebox on the porch of Mrs. Hallman's tenant farm home Wednesday night.

The 28-year-old mother returned home late Wednesday with her two other children, Mary Ellen, 10 and Eugene, to discover them missing.

She said the younger children had been left in Edward's care during the summer while she chopped cotton in the fields about a mile and a half from her home.

The frantic mother went to the homes of her neighbors without finding any trace of the missing children. She finally called county officers who discovered the bodies.

"I must have walked by that icebox a dozen times but I never dreamed they might be in there," Mrs. Hallman said. "We hadn't been using it for some time."

White House Decision

Several times since the new national administration took office the public has been surprised, if not actually shocked, by apparent lack of unity between the State Department and the White House.

This may be due to the fact we had become accustomed to State Department decisions being supreme under Dean Acheson, especially where foreign policy was involved. If the State Department wanted the armed forces to do something in the Far East removed it seems the only thing it had to do was to issue instructions to the White House and the desire would be carried out.

It is different now. We still have a Secretary of State who likes to "run off at the mouth," it seems, but he doesn't get by with it like Dean Acheson did. When he invades the field of the Chief Executive of the civil government or the Commander-in-chief of the armed forces, the head of those important branches speaks up without delay.

The other day Secretary Dulles made the calm announcement that South Korea would be made into a "show-window" for the world to see how the United States rebuilds nations it has something to do with destroying. So far, so good. When he added that American troops would be used in lieu of hired help to do the rebuilding President Eisenhower said "there will be no such thing done."

It may be well that Army Engineers and other technicians may participate voluntarily in rebuilding South Korea like they did in Europe following World War Two. But there will be no forced labor wearing the uniform of the Army, Navy, Air Force or Marines.

We certainly understand Secretary Dulles' desire to get soldiers back into some sort of productive enterprise, but the only democratic way to do it is to turn them out of the Army, and this the armed forces are reluctant to do until peace is finally achieved. Under such circumstances there is nothing to do except appropriate almost unlimited millions to provide wholesome entertainment for a couple of million idle men and boys. And that's a mighty big order. For an "idle brain is the devil's workshop," especially if the brain is in the head of a lone-some boy or young man.

The problem in Korea, and other occupied countries, is just one of the headaches our leaders have developed since we put war on a permanent basis. One generation with a million men in occupied countries may produce three or four million half-breeds, some legitimate, but most of them illegitimate.

One of the best ways to cut down on the number is to put men overseas to work on construction jobs, but under our form of government it just can't be done. Maybe the Communists have an advantage of us in that respect, but even so we prefer our way. We are not ready to draft men to work, despite the fact Mrs. Roosevelt and "Muddum Perkins" wanted to do it during World War Two.

It wouldn't be wise to start a "send our boys home" demand before a peace treaty is signed in Korea, but if they are going to do any building we want them to do it here. And get prevailing wages for it. Lots of us are behind on our building since the boys left home in 1950, and the sooner they get back the better. We hate to have Suol messed up, but that's one of the hazards involved in a civil war. The only mistake we made was in sticking our nose in something that was none of our business.

Yanks Break Loose With Hits To Sink Senators 22-1

By CARL LUNDQUIST
United Press Sports Writer

New York, Aug. 13 (UP)—With a holocaust of hits, the blazing Yankees showed today what they thought of the Senators and their "tall grass" ball park after a 22-1 near-record victory they could have won in a regular field.

Their 28 hits were only two short of an American League mark of 30 set by the 1923 Yankees, and had set rookie reliever Steve Kraly pitched a run to Washington in the eighth, they would have had a modern mark for a shutout margin.

The record of 21-0 was set by the 1901 Yankees, and Casey Stengel, commenting caustically that the rash of low hit games in Washington was because of the high outfield grass which kept balls from bouncing any distance, suddenly was aware that his Yankees didn't care what was out there. And after a while he must have wondered if the Senators had any outfielders. Yogi Berra set the tempo with a three-run homer in a five-run first and the home Washington finish the Yankees had pounded out two triples, three doubles and 22 singles.

Whitey Ford pitched three-hit ball for seven innings but was so exhausted from his work on the hit, Kraly had to finish.

He gave up two more hits and the home Washington run as Ford was credited with his 14th victory against four defeats.

The White Sox, who were in Cleveland and lost 7-4, to the seven games behind again, by Gene Bearden threw balls at a straight Joe Paparella and his glove into the stands and kept a stiff line and suspension after Bob Avila, friend of the Indians got into it with catcher Red Wilson of Chicago when he was tagged out on another close play.

At St. Louis, Ray Boone of the Tigers hit his fourth grand slam homer of the year to tie an American League mark in a 7-3 victory over the Browns. It was his 19th round tripper of the campaign. Three of his full production wallopers were against the Browns.

The Red Sox made it three straight over the Athletics, winning 3-2 as Billy Goodman and Hook Evers drove in the decisive runs in the 10th inning and Mickey McDermott picked up his 12th victory with help from Ellis Kinder.

The Dodgers spotted the Giants a 3-0 lead then won 6-5 as Duke Snider sparked a five-run rally in the 10th inning and Mickey McDermott picked up his 12th victory with help from Ellis Kinder.

Second-place Milwaukee picked up a half-game and trails now by seven games by sweeping a double-bill with the Cardinals 8-2 and 5-3. Ed Mathews set the opening game pace by driving in two runs with a pair of doubles while the Braves won the second game with two runs in the eighth on a double by Jim Pendleton and a scoring fly by pinch-hitter Bob Thorpe.

Robin Roberts became the first major league pitcher to win 20 games, scattering 12 hits, striking out nine and driving in three runs as he delivered a key triple in Philadelphia's 8-4 victory over Pittsburgh.

Roberts won his 20th game, a 1-0 win over the Pirates, after losing the opener 10-6 when Andy Seminick hit a grand slam homer in the ninth inning.

OBLIGING

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 12 (UP)—Three men who asked police to lock them up on drunk charges found city Judge Phil Canale just as obliging.

When the three men appeared in city court Tuesday and asked that the charges be dismissed he agreed and set them free.

VITAL STATISTICS

Chicago, Aug. 2 (UP)—The Foundation Garment Company came up with some statistics today.

The most popular brassiere size in 37 different countries, the company said, is 34B.

Buxom beauties in Sweden and northern Europe may buy larger brassieres but they average only one size greater than the rest of the world.

The tiny women of the Far East buy a great many padded bras, the company said, but so do American women.

ABOUT . . .

YOUR MILK SUPPLY

We have had several people recently to ask us about our quality standards for SUNBURST MILK.

Here are the answers:

First, about our producers of Grade A Milk.

1. Our producers are inspected once each month by the County Sanitarian. He rates the entire setup and sanitary practices of each producer, and leaves rating sheet with him.
2. The County Sanitarian collects from each producer a sample of milk once each month and sends it to the Kentucky Sample Department of Health Laboratory for complete analysis.
3. Any producer falling below a certain dairy rating and sanitary practice is degraded and removed from our list of approved Grade A producers.
4. The last official U. S. Public Health Service rating of our producers was 94.21% — one of the highest in the state.
5. In addition to the above, our own Field Agent devotes most of his time working with our producers helping them to maintain EVERY DAY, a high standard of quality for Grade A milk.

We are proud of our Grade A producers, and we as well as our producers would be most happy to have you visit them.

Let us call you about our plant.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR
DAVE and Karen drove to town in his car. Standing on the sidewalk by the steps to her aunt's frame house, he became aware that someone was calling him.

"Dave, Dave Barton!"
He turned, car door swung down, a man and woman were waving. He stared at them, which visitors from another world, which, indeed, they were—a world once his. The car pulled in ahead of his, and his acquaintances got out.

"We have to make Albany; we were just passing through; we couldn't believe our eyes." They turned them on Karen and Dave accomplished the introductions. To Karen it sounded like "Mrs. and Mr. Whooosh," to the Whoooshes, like "Miss Hows."

She made her acknowledgment, smiled, said: "Thanks, Dave. Will you ask someone at the garage to 'phone Aunt Mame?' and went up the steps."

Dave stood, with his and Em's friends, and they talked. Of the weather, "Wonderful, isn't it? But I bet you had a rugged winter." Of their plans: "Sorry we have to go on, but Jordan has an engagement in Albany. Or himself? We knew you were up here somewhere. You look fit; you look just fine."

"I am."
"Yes, a few miles out."
"What do you hear from Em?" Isn't she marvellous? This was Mrs. Whooosh.

He said he'd heard recently and that Em was well and, yes, doing important work. Then the interminable conversation ended, and the Whoooshes returned to their car.

The encounter was irritating as a punkie, it buzzed in his mind, stung, he slipped it away. To blazes with the Whoooshes, who were actually Mr. and Mrs. G. Jordan Woster. Substantial people. Belonged to the best clubs.

He went to the garage, picked up mechanic and battery, and took them back to camp.

Karen's holiday ran out, but on the following Saturday night she and Frank came to camp for supper, bringing a girl with them. Frank had asked if he might, one day in the bank when Dave had talked to him. "We're a visiting friendman at our place, my cousin, Winnie Goodwin. She and her folks used to come up every summer. The last time they rented the Peters camp. She's been at me to ask you if she could go out. Says it's her favorite place. Would you mind a lot, sir?"

"How about Saturday—you, Karen, and your cousin, Dave had asked hospitably. 'For supper?'"

It had been deliberate, he had welcomed the opportunity to watch them together, the young girl and the young man. Wear Saturday night like a hairshirt, use it as a lash, look at them, murmur, and repeat, after me, slowly and distinctly: That's how it is, that's how it should be. Learn your lesson, you old fool.

Winnie was dark, round, and dimpled, and nearly 30. She walked with her head in the last, rosiest light. She said she was just mad about this place and had all she wanted when Frank's mother wrote that it had been said.

"I always planned to marry a rich man," Winnie cooed, "so that I could buy it myself. Isn't Mrs. Barton just insane about it?" "She hasn't seen it. She's in Europe."

"Isn't she lucky? I wish I could go abroad." She looked at him, smiling. She was 16 pounds overweight, she had dimples and small hands. Her tone indicated that Em's good fortune wasn't entirely due to her ability to travel. "You must miss her dreadfully."

He said: "She went abroad with refugee children."

Winnie's eyes talked even more than her small, red mouth. More fool, she, the unknown Mrs. Barton, letting him off the cash. Refugee husbands are more important.

"Aren't Frank and Karen the cutest couple? Look at them. You'd think they didn't know each other. Frank's sweet, of course, but so young. Of course, he's my cousin and even though he's older than me, I keep thinking of him as if he were a kid. I've always admired older men."

Karen's a funny girl, isn't she? In some ways, I mean. Of course, she's just darling—but you know her quite well, don't you, Mr. Barton?"

He said that he had met Karen during the spring, and that she was a fine girl and a talented painter.

Karen cooked supper. This had been a condition. "I think Frank had his nerve to ask you, Dave, but we'll come if you'll let me cook."

Aunt Mame had seen to it that Karen could cook, and well. Winnie flew about, setting the table, busy in a violent sort of way, accomplishing little except to command: "Can you reach that?" "Mr. Barton? Of course, you go talk. I'm such a shrimp."

"I'm scared of old lamps. Would you light this, Mr. Barton, pretty please?"

After supper, Karen washed up. Dave dried, and Winnie dragged Frank outdoors to look at the moon.

Karen said, smiling: "I hope you don't mind Winnie too much. She's always been crazy about Frank. I wouldn't have thought—Aren't they cousins?"

"Distant, I never know if it's second cousin once removed or just plain third."

"I don't either."

Sometimes she hummed tunelessly as she worked. Now and again her hands touched. "Don't drop that dish, Dave," or "Here's a towel." "It's hot."

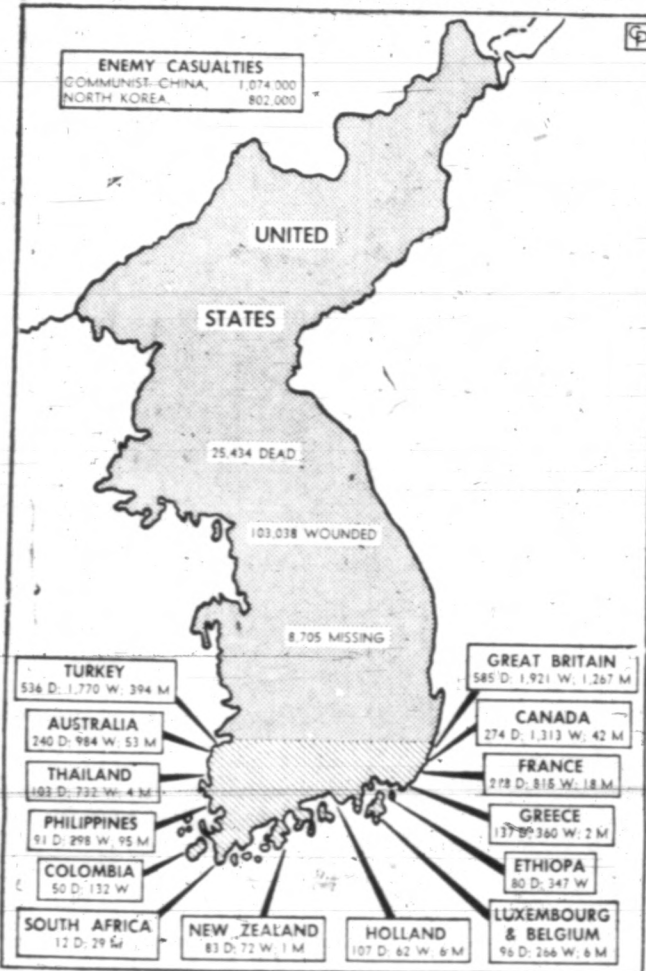

They were alone in a small, gently lighted space, enclosed by friendly walls. Together. They might hear the car drive in.

Next time you pack your Buick out of the garage, cock a critical ear at the sound of your exhaust.

Does it still have that tuneful, factory-new note? If not, that may mean your muffler has taken a beating and ought to be replaced—before it cuts down power, raises gas consumption, or leaks exhaust fumes.

Why not drop into our shop and let us bend our Buick-trained ears over it, and give it a close look for leaks? We're glad to do this with no charge—and if we can give your muffler a clean bill of health, you'll find it mighty reassuring!

Down Concord Way

The election is over and our sympathy is extended to all those who ran in vain. As we have said before, we wish we could vote for each in some of the races.

It is complimentary to the candidate and the county that there was the least enmity and ill will shown in this election than any I can remember.

Maybe more preachers than Rev. Paul Lyles have been preaching how Christians should live, rather than stirring up animosity and strife by trying to prove that they were right and everybody else was wrong.

Any way, we congratulate the winners in each race. They all fought a good fight, a clean, courteous fight, and we hope that all can be content with the result, for when the great scores come to write against our name, he will not ask did we win or lose, but how we played the game.

Many revivals have been in progress and some still are. We hear that the greatest one so far, seems to have been at South Pleasant Grove, where Dr. Lamb was preaching.

Miss Ruth Montgomery is at home again after visiting for several weeks in Texas, Arkansas and Missouri; a girl friend from Missouri is now visiting her. Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Pittman and Mrs. Leslie Pittman of Detroit, also Mr. and Mrs. Edward Knight of Detroit, have been visiting relatives in our county. Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lax Jr. and children left Monday morning for a vacation to the Smoky Mountains.

We are glad that some farmers now have found that the world does not if they take off a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Hillis Harris and daughter of Detroit, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Spiceland of Murray.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Marine came down to see us and other acquaintances a few minutes while back here visiting. We know they are missed from their church in Highland Park, Michigan.
